BOMBS HIT EMBASSIES

SUICIDE ATTACKERS KILL 42 IN LATEST SPIKE OF VIOLENCE

Suicide attackers detonated three car bombs in quick succession near foreign embassies in Baghdad on Sunday, killing 42 people in coordinated strikes that Iraqi officials said were intended to disrupt efforts to form a new government.

The bombings followed the execution-style killings of 24 villagers in a Sunni area two days earlier, a spike in violence that suggests insurgents are seizing on the political uncertainty after the recent election to try to destabilize the country as U.S. troops prepare to leave. No clear winner emerged from the March 7 vote.

Sunday's explosions went off within minutes of each other, starting shortly after 11 a.m. One struck near the Iranian Embassy and two others hit an area that houses several diplomatic missions, including the Egyptian Consulate and the German and Spanish embassies. It was not immediately known whether diplomatic staff were among the victims.

DEADLY MONTH

The civilian death toll in Iraq rose slightly in March compared to the previous month, a continuing sign of tension surrounding a parliamentary election that failed to produce a clear winner. Officials said 216 civilians died violent deaths in March compared to 211 in February and 135 in January.

Authorities said they foiled two other attacks aimed at diplomatic targets by stopping the would-be bombers' vehicles and defusing the explosives.

Stunned victims in bloody clothes were loaded into ambulances as gray smoke rose over Baghdad.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility, although multiple, coordinated bombings in the capital are a hallmark of al-Qaida in Iraq.

Tiger has landed

Woods

Tiger Woods arrived without warning on a lazy Sunday afternoon at the Masters.

He offered a playful jab when he greeted two reporters he had not seen in five months, acting as though nothing had changed.

Woods has not been seen in public, except for a few chosen media, since his middle-of-the-night car accident Nov. 27 that set off explosive revelations of a sordid life hardly anyone knew existed.

He is to speak at 2 p.m. Monday (1 p.m. CDT) in a news conference of such interest that the club has limited seating to one reporter for each news outlet, with only a few exceptions.

Most of the players have not seen him since he won the Australian Masters on Nov. 15, or played in Shanghai the week before. Fellow player Jim Furyk had not seen him since they celebrated a Presidents Cup victory on Oct. 11.

"He's probably here a little earlier than normal," said Furyk, who spoke with Woods for about five minutes on the practice green. "I've never seen him here on a Sunday. Generally, it's nice to have him back and I can't wait until he's out here and I don't have to answer any more questions about him."

TWEET OF THE WEEK

@itszmirix3
Lmao; baby thinks he's reading a book. Boy has it upside down. Haha.

Playing chicken— with your privacy

Some of my Facebook friends have insomnia. How do I know? Facebook.

It's plain as day, errr, night.

Some are being kept awake by all the chickens. "_____ just harvested their chicken coop and wants to thank their friends for feeding the chickens and increasing the chances of finding a Mystery Egg!" I don't play Farmville—I hate it—but 2:12 a.m. seems like a weird time to be harvesting a chicken coop.

Others apparently are helping to keep certain fantasies alive. "_____ and _____ just unlocked the Spring Break Pillow in Pillow Fight!"

Naughty. And at 3:24 a.m. no less.

Know what's funny, besides all that?

Some of the friends I'm referring to post all the time about how important their privacy is and how they are so careful to change certain settings in order to not give too much away.

Maybe they don't think posting their game updates gives away anything important, but I beg to differ. Knowing someone is awake playing with virtual barn animals before even the real ones are awake, especially when that person has a 9 to 5 job, is at least curious. Of course, this from the person who announces 19 out of 20 of his moves on Foursquare.

So, touche.

People who know me will tell you this isn't the first time I've brought this up. Their advice is almost always the same: Update your feed settings and block the Farmville updates. Believe me, I'm tempted. But as strange as this might sound, I feel like I'm cutting off a source of valuable information by not knowing how someone's egg hunt is going or what someone's most hidden emotion is.

That said, there's nothing wrong with sharing your virtual life with your friends. You just have to be responsible about it. And remember, you never know who's looking. The friend I mention above in the Farmville example, the one with the 9 to 5 job, has several Farmville posts throughout the work day. And knowing that this person doesn't work for Facebook raises the risk a bit.

Don't worry. I'll politely let the person know—we are friends, after all.

What's your take? Do you share your Facebook gaming experiences with everyone or do you keep it to yourself? Tweet me, poke me, friend me—just tell me. I won't return the favor by milking the cows, but I will be grateful.

Parishioners celebrate Easter Mass on Sunday at Holy Name Cathedral, which was hit by fire last year. MICHAEL TERCHA/TRIBUNE PHOTO

Holy Name shines

Thousands turn out for Easter services at renovated church

Chicago Tribune

For the first time in three years, thousands of parishioners on Sunday returned to Holy Name Cathedral to celebrate Easter service.

The storied seat of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago closed when a fire erupted in the attic last year. The blaze came after the 135-year-old cathedral had shuttered its doors for structural repairs.

A chunk of decorative woodwork fell from the ceiling and damaged a pew in 2008. And a year earlier, in 2007, the church underwent renovations that added a terrazzo floor, refinished the pews and installed new boilers.

With the latest repairs complete and the last trace of scaffolding removed months ago, parishioners and visitors stood in a line that circled the downtown Chicago cathedral as they awaited holiday services

"We thought this would be something different. It's very poignant."

—MAUREEN CHAIKEN, WHO ARRIVED AN HOUR EARLY TO ATTEND EASTER MASS AT HOLY NAME CATHEDRAL

in their Easter finery.

Maureen Chaiken and her family arrived for the 11 a.m. Mass an hour early to get their pick of pews for their first visit to Holy Name, the epicenter of Chicago's large Catholic community.

"We thought this would be something different," said Chaiken of LaGrange. "It's very poignant."

The Rev. Dan Mayall said he'd never seen such a turnout in his eight years as pastor.

"This church has come back from a long, hard time. But we have our parishioners here, we have people from all over Chicagoland, from all over the U.S., from all over the world," Mayall said.

The Gothic Revival cathedral holds about 1,100 people. Mayall estimated the crowd hit 1,500 during many of the six services held Easter Sunday. The crowd spilled onto the church's front steps during the 11 a.m. Mass.

Parishioner Ophelia Casimiro squeezed into the back of the church to hear Cardinal Francis George's Easter homily, a sermon that celebrates the Christian belief that Jesus rose from the dead three days after his crucifixion.

Casimiro waited in line again after the Mass to shake George's hand.

"It is so special," Casimiro said. "I live on the North Side, but I come to this church every Sunday."

Luis Rivera (shown with his two children) is on track to graduate from UIC—and then attend medical school. TRIBUNE FILE PHOTO

Gender gap seen in Latino enrollment

Chicago Tribune

Luis Rivera's life is a delicate balancing act—studying at the University of Illinois at Chicago for up to 12 hours a day, caring for his two young children and working as a research assistant at the school's College of Medicine.

Rivera, 33, will complete his bachelor of arts with a major in Latin American and Latino studies, and is determined to succeed in medical school, which he starts this fall. But when he graduated high school nearly 16 years ago, he, like many of his Hispanic male counterparts, sidelined a college experience so he could work full time.

"I just felt so uncomfortable—I figured, you know maybe the school thing just isn't me," Rivera said.

Rivera's initial decision to skip college is typical among Hispanic men. While undergraduate enrollment among Hispanic men and women has spiked in the past decade, women are by far outpacing their male counterparts, according to a recent study released by the American Council on Education. In the past decade, college enrollment among Hispanic women increased by 70 percent, compared with 56 percent among Hispanic men, said Jacqueline King, the study's author.

The study, "Gender Equity in Higher Education: 2010," was released in January by the council, a Washington, D.C.-based organization that researches education issues.

Several factors contribute to the disparity between Hispanic men and women attending college, experts say. In general, immigrant children have a harder time in school than nonimmigrants, studies say. And men make up about two-thirds of young adult Hispanic immigrants.

Baja California quake shakes buildings in L.A.

4 LOS ANGELES A strong earthquake struck in the Guadalupe Victoria area of Baja California, Mexico, on Sunday, shaking skyscrapers in San Diego and L.A.

California Institute of Technology seismologists said the latest preliminary estimates place the magnitude at 7.2.

The Los Angeles Fire Department said it was going into “earthquake” mode, checking buildings and bridges for possible structural damage and checking reports of people stuck in elevators. Rides were temporarily closed at Disneyland in Anaheim.

There were no reports of major infrastructure damage in L.A., but reports were still coming in from San Diego and Mexico. San Diego fire officials were responding to at least one report of a damaged building.

“LAFD has all resources on radio watch and checking their district to ensure safety for all citizens. Firefighters from your 106 neighborhood fire stations are providing a complete survey of 470 square miles in the greater Los Angeles area,” the department said in a statement.

The temblor struck at 3:40 p.m. about 108 miles east of Tijuana.

Protest changes course

13 escape in prison break

7 Thirteen inmates escaped when armed men stormed a prison in the northern Mexican border city of Reynosa. It was the second mass jailbreak in less than two weeks in Tamaulipas state, which has been wracked by a new wave of battles between feuding drug gangs.

Topless march

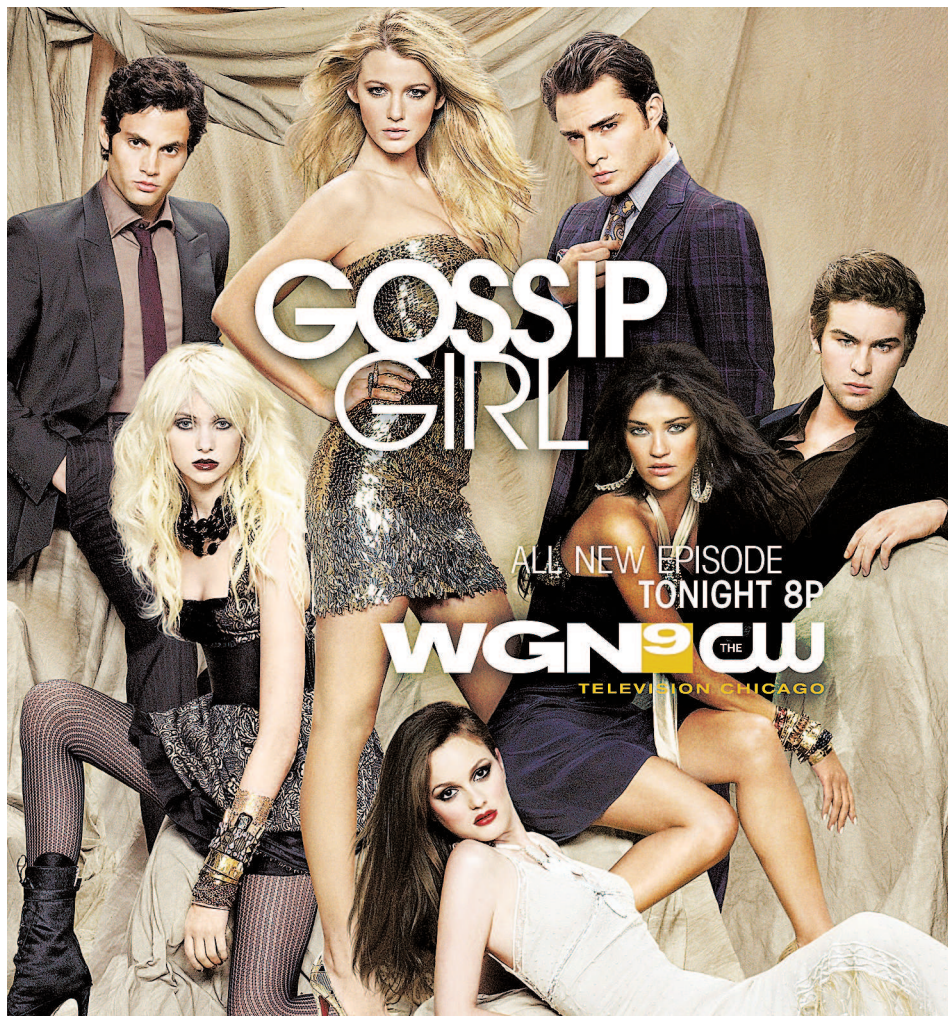

8 About two dozen women drew a crowd of onlookers in Portland, Maine, when they shed their shirts and marched downtown Saturday to promote what they call equal-opportunity public toplessness. The point: A topless woman out in public shouldn’t attract any more attention than a shirtless man.

OPENING DAY 2010

It's been a wild ride. It seems like it's been a wild year and a half for me. I finally got to where I wanted to be. It's very exciting.”

GORDON BECKHAM

On his time spent with the White Sox

White Sox star Gordon Beckham adjusts to big-league life, prepares for first full season after rapid ascent

By Scott Bolohan | FOR REDEYE

A year ago, with just 14 professional games under his belt, Gordon Beckham was the White Sox's top prospect.

Today, he is one of the faces of the franchise. And with that comes high expectations. However, Beckham's meteoric rise to stardom—requiring a mere 59 games in the minors—met with difficulties along the way. His major-league career began with an 0-for-13 debut for the White Sox in June, followed by a 2-for-15 effort.

“Anytime you come up to the big leagues you want to do well,” Beckham, 23, said last week in a modest Southern drawl after the White Sox beat the A's 2-0 in their final home spring training game. “I put high expectations on myself anyways. It was frustrating; I was pressing a little bit. All the games were at home. It was just one of those things where I wanted to do well for myself and the fans and the team, and we were struggling.

“At the start of a career you don't want that. It wasn't the first time I've struggled, I promise you that. To get out of that funk at the beginning was a huge confidence builder and made me the player I am today.”

And quite the player he is. After that brutal start, Beckham went on a tear, finishing the year hitting .270 with 14 homers and 63 RBIs. That earned him Sporting News' rookie of the year honor. The offseason gave Beckham time to reflect on his first season in the big leagues.

“It's been a wild ride,” he said. “It seems like it's been a wild year and a half for me. I finally got to where I wanted to be. It's very exciting.”

This season could prove even wilder for Beckham. Experts have their eye on him and expect him to be one of the league's best young players.

“Beckham is the guy to watch—he more than held his own last year after only 59 games in the minor leagues,” si.com's Joe Posnanski wrote. “If you are looking for breakout stars, he's a pretty good candidate.”

Sporting News singled Beckham out in its preview of the AL Central.

“Gordon Beckham's rise will mirror that of the Rays' Evan Longoria in terms of how quickly the league respects and fears him,” the magazine wrote.

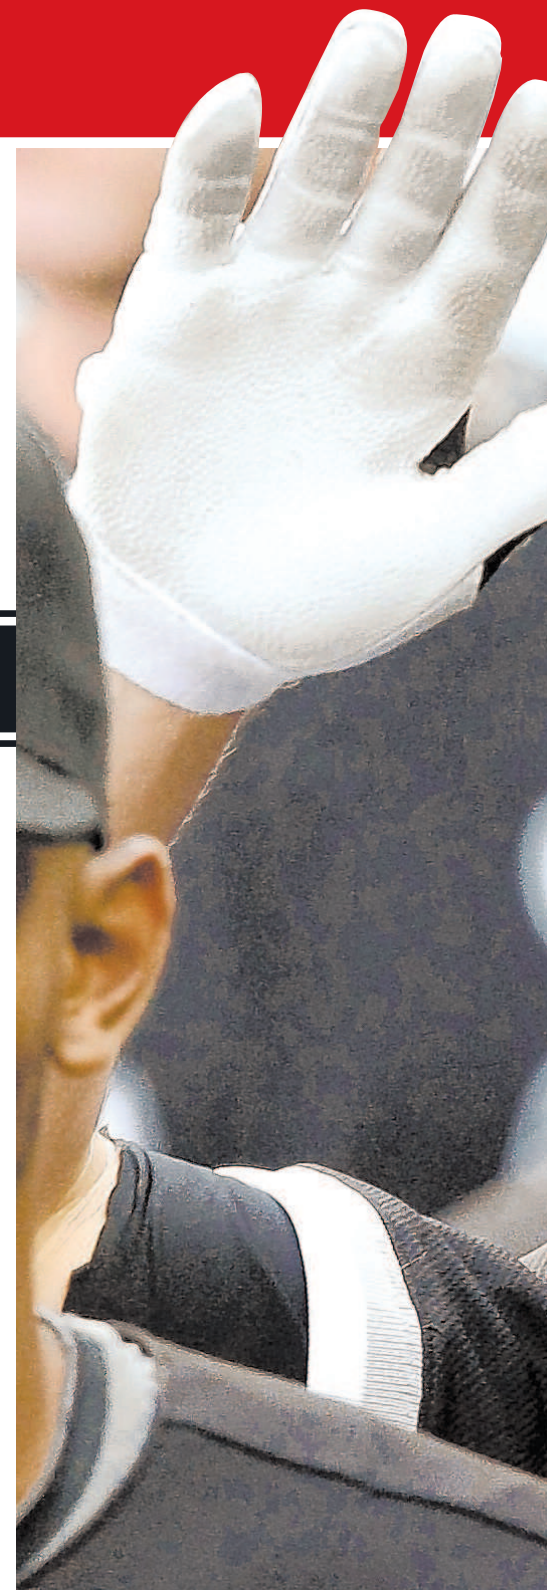

But Beckham wasn't always on the fast track to baseball stardom. Football was Beckham's first love as he grew up in Georgia. His dad played quarterback at South Carolina, and Beckham himself was a standout high school quarterback.

“I always kind of liked football better,” he said. “I always played baseball but just focused on football. By the time I got to college I was only playing baseball. Just working on that day in and day out, it helped my game tremendously.”

While it may seem Beckham is a natural in the mold of Roy Hobbs, he says that's not the case.

“It took me a while in baseball to kind of figure it out,” Beckham said. “I don't feel like I was that good until my junior year of college. I think that's when I put it all together and had a good season. I did some good things and put up some good numbers. Athletically I was always good, so that kind of helped me through at times. But once I went to college and really focused on baseball, I kept getting better and better. I think that's what really propelled me to where I am today.”

For the second time in a year, Beckham is switching positions. He was drafted as a shortstop but played exclusively in the majors at third base. With the addition of Mark Teahen, he's sliding across the diamond to second base.

"I feel very comfortable at second base," Beckham said. "I like second base and that's the position I'm going to be at for hopefully a long time."

No matter where he plays, he's become a fan favorite.

"Chicago fans are the best," Beckham said. "They know their sports. Playing a sport in Chicago, people know who you are. I've been getting noticed every once and a while around town. It's weird, a little different than I'm used to. It's part of the process."

While Beckham says he doesn't care about individual accomplishments, he picked up two rookie of the year awards voted on by fellow players but finished fifth in the official baseball writers' voting.

"It would have meant a lot if I had won it," Beckham said. "I try to act like it doesn't now that I didn't; it is what it is. I'm not disappointed. It just gives me more motivation."

A year from now, who knows how good Beckham will be. But if his career so far is any indication, he'll probably have other awards to worry about.

- 1 What is your Opening Day tradition?
- 2 Make a prediction about the White Sox's home opener at U.S. Cellular Field.
- 3 Who deserves the hype more: Gordon Beckham or Tyler Colvin?
- 4 What does baseball's Opening Day mean to you?
- 5 How did you celebrate the Blackhawks' first division title since 1992-93?

I get a strangely powerful craving for hot dogs and bitter disappointment.

Buehrle gets the win, Quentin goes yard and Beckham signs an endorsement deal with Axe Hair.

Let's go ahead and ask everyone who bought a Fukudome headband two years ago, shall we?

Again, hot dogs and disappointment. Not unlike most other days, frankly.

One champagne led to another, and by the end of the night I'd been booked for checking from behind.

I will mysteriously "get sick" at work and show up by the second inning.

See No. 1.

Beckham. Calling him a five-tool player isn't enough. How about the South Side Swiss Army Knife?

Time again for Chicago to retake its title as the greatest city in the world.

By wearing my pants backward Kris-Kross style like I did back then.

I burn pictures of Steve Garvey, Will Clark and Josh Beckett at my shrine to Harry Caray.

The "black out" will be more like a "rolling brown out."

Whoever has the better hair. Point goes to Beckham.

Sweet, sweet relief from Bulls and Bears talk on sports radio.

I punched a cardboard cut-out of Mario Lemieux while yelling "I'm not afraid of you anymore!"

I'm told it's "Year One," so I'm throwing tradition out the window along with hope.

Instead of fireworks, Ozzie F-bombs are launched from the scoreboard. Sponsored, of course.

Advantage Beckham. He may play second now but still gets to third base nightly.

Taking my hot tub to 1908—finally can use those dumb "it's going to happen" signs.

I had one heck of a shirtless Easter egg hunt.

I stay optimistic about the Cubs for the day before I fall into a downward spiral of anger and self-loathing.

Only a quarter of the park will be empty as opposed to the usual half.

Beckham, if only because the Cubs farm system is less consistent than Joe Morgan's baseball analysis.

The greatest day of the regular season and something I anticipate at the end of the World Series every year.

I took a shirtless limo ride. No women though.

Lower Back Pain?

Are You or Someone You Know Suffering From Lower Back Pain?

Northwestern University is seeking volunteers who have lower back pain in order to determine where the pain is recognized in the brain. Participants will also be evaluated to determine why pain goes away for some people while it remains for others. This is a 12 month study consisting of 1 visit at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and 5 MRI scans at Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Olson Pavilion. All visits will take place in downtown Chicago.

Eligible participants must:

- Be 18 years or older
- Have a history of lower back pain which began 4-16 weeks ago with pain radiating into the buttocks or legs
- Be able to undergo a MRI (no pacemakers, metallic implants, or spinal implants)

Please call 312-503-3181 for more information on how you can take part in this research study.

The Big Zzzzz?

It was a laid-back Carlos Zambrano who had a brief session with media Sunday.

Monday will be his sixth straight Opening Day start for the Cubs, and he says it's nothing special.

"I'll be in control. It's another game and the beginning of the season and I will do my best to play good and pitch good," he said.

So does Piniella really believe the slimmed-down version of Big Z is really a toned-down version as well?

"I'm sure there might be a little slippage. I hope not," Piniella said. "But it's hard to be perfect, and we'll leave it at that."

First baseman Derrek Lee, on the other hand, admitted he gets "excited, the butterflies in my stomach will be there [Monday]. I won't sleep great. If that gets old, it's not fun anymore."

Lee was told that Tyler Colvin, who made the team by hitting .468 in Arizona, said he would sleep well.

"He's lying," Lee laughed. "He'll probably be up until 4 in the morning, then sleep an hour and be up thinking about [Braves starter] Derek Lowe."

LILLY ON DL

Ted Lilly threw 67 pitches in 5 2/3 innings in a minor-league outing in Mesa and will begin his minor-league rehab Friday at Triple-A Iowa. Lilly and Angel Guzman were officially placed on the disabled list Sunday.

Central time

Blackhawks on top of division for first time since 1992-93

There was no popping of Champagne bottles or hooting and hollering in the dressing room Sunday after the Blackhawks clinched their first division title in 17 years.

The Hawks actually were champions of the Central Division even before they took the ice to defeat the Flames 4-1 at the United Center after the Red Wings had lost to the Flyers earlier in the day. It'd been so long since the Hawks had been on top that when they last won it in 1992-93, it was called the Norris Division.

"Oh, really?" winger Marian Hossa said when given the history lesson. "I didn't know that. It's a nice accomplishment after so many years. We worked hard all year for this to try to get the best position in the playoffs."

They reached that goal Sunday by winning their third straight game as Patrick Kane had a goal and an assist, Tomas Kopecky, Troy Brouwer and Dustin Byfuglien scored and Antti Niemi continued his stellar play in goal. The Hawks tied a franchise record with their 49th win of the season, equaling the mark of the 1970-71 and 1990-91 squads.

"It's fun to be part of history, it really is," Kane, 21, said. "Seventeen years ... I was 4 years old the last time they won the division, so it's been a long time coming for Blackhawks fans."

Cubs at Atlanta 3:10 p.m. ESPN

1 Cubs win 6-5. Carlos Zambrano does not have a meltdown.

White Sox vs. Cleveland 1:05 p.m. CSN, ESPN2

2 Sox win 4-2. Mark "Quickie" Buehrle ends the game in under 2 hours, 15 minutes.

Butler vs. Duke 8 p.m. CBS

3 Butler 72, Duke 70. Win or lose, Mike Krzyzewski cries in the news conference.

» Butler center Matt Howard was held out of Sunday's practice and could miss Monday night's NCAA championship game against Duke with a concussion.

» Donovan McNabb is changing uniforms and staying in the NFC East. The Philadelphia Eagles traded McNabb to the Washington Redskins for a pair of draft picks Sunday night. The Eagles will receive a second-round pick (37th overall).

» Scottie Pippen, the ultimate NBA sidekick, is expected to be announced as one of this year's inductees to the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame on Monday in Indianapolis.

Sox-capades

Where to celebrate the White Sox home opener before, during and after the game

By Lisa Balde

Baseball season returns to Chicago on Monday, and it's starting on the South Side at 1:05 p.m. Whether you're lucky enough to have tickets to the home opener and need a pregame food stop, or you're looking for a standby bar to drink and watch the game, you needn't look far from the Cell (333 W. 35th St.). Here's your starting lineup:

Mitchell's Tap

Buffalo Wings & Rings

SEASONED PROS

Buffalo Wings & Rings

3434 S. Halsted St. 773-579-9464

Entering its third Sox season, the Bridgeport location of this chicken wing-centric sports-bar chain brings back WSCR-AM 670, the Sox's flagship station, to cover the game live from 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m.

Get there: By 7 a.m. for a free breakfast buffet (ends 10 a.m.) of eggs, breakfast potatoes and fruit. Arrive at 11:30 a.m. to snag any of the remaining 20 free parking spots and hop the $4 shuttle to the Cell.

Morgan's Bar and Grill

1325 S. Halsted St. 312-243-4800

As fans remember in 2005, this University Village bar packs up during big Sox games. Expect more of the same thanks to $12 Miller Lite buckets and $5 Bacardi drinks during home games.

Get there: When the bar opens at 9 a.m. The first 50 through the door get a free shuttle ride to the Cell. No tickets? Skip the ride and stick around to hear ESPN 1000's pregame action from 9 a.m.-noon.

Kroll's South Loop

1736 S. Michigan Ave. 312-235-1400

Though Kroll's originated in Wisconsin, this spot's baseball loyalty is true to the White Sox. Pledge allegiance with $12 buckets of MGD, Miller Lite and MGD 64.

Get there: After the game, with ticket stub in hand. All game-goers get $2 off any size pizza and 10 percent off their tab. Offer valid on all home games.

ESTABLISHED VETERAN

Mitchell's Tap

3356 S. Halsted St. 773-927-6073

Nothing says White Sox like this neighborhood tap, one of the few Bridgeport bar vets honoring daily drink specials—$1 Jell-O shots to $3 Fat Tire pints—during the home opener.

Get there: At 11 a.m. sharp for the free annual barbecue. Munch Italian sausage and hamburgers in Mitchell's backyard, then catch the game inside.

SECOND-YEAR PLAYER

Rocky's

234 W. 31st St. 312-842-9200

This hot young sports bar celebrates its first full baseball season by debuting its revamped 2,500-square-foot back patio, equipped with cafe tables and a tiki bar.

Get there: In enough time to grab a patio seat before the game. As long as the weather cooperates, this is the best spot to drink between innings. Early risers can start the party at 7 a.m. with Q101 DJs Sherman and Tingle.

ROOKIE

Nana

3267 S. Halsted St. 312-929-2486

Your chance to snag a seat at this go-to BYOB for pregame breakfast and lunch just got better thanks to the recent 40-seat dining room expansion.

Get there: For breakfast. Choose from beer-sopping favorites such as the Nanadict ($9.50) and chilaquiles ($10), and be sure to bring a bottle to accompany Nana's bloody mary mix.

Coming soon: Sidewalk seating and dinner service in May, plus more seasonal food options from new chef Guy Meikle, formerly of Bin 36.

AAA CALL-UP

Cork & Kerry at the Park

3258 S. Princeton Ave. No phone yet

Beverly favorite Cork & Kerry is stepping up into the big leagues with this second location within walking distance of the Cell in the old Jimbo's address. This far South Side bar with a lively Sox scene certainly has the credentials to succeed in Bridgeport, considering it's played host to pitching coach Don Cooper's radio show "Coop at the Cork" and owner Bill Guide was a Sox bat boy in the early '80s.

Get there: Later this spring, though an opening date has not been set.

Guy gone wild

Don't get the wrong idea, Casey Anderson does have friends who are human. But his best friend is a 900-pound grizzly bear named Brutus.

As we learn in the premiere episode of Anderson's "Expedition Wild" series, the naturalist has raised Brutus since he was "the size of a coffee cup." Brutus even served as Anderson's best man when he married actress Missi Pyle.

"When you rescue them at that age, you have to bottle feed them and do all those things," Anderson told me last week. "When you do that you have a bond that forms and you can see in the show that that bond continues."

In the debut, called "Project Kodiak" and airing at 8 p.m. Monday on Nat Geo WILD, Anderson sets out to train Brutus how to hunt, fish or forage like wild bears.

In order to learn what to teach Brutus, Anderson traveled to Alaska's Kodiak Island in July to study and film the habits of the island's 3,500 bears—considered the largest bears in the world.

"It's the ultimate bear trek," Anderson said. "It was always a dream to go there."

For Anderson, who runs a bear sanctuary called Montana Grizzly Encounter outside Bozeman, the trip did more than fulfill a the episode, especially when he goes back home to Montana to teach Brutus what he learned.

Anderson and his friends—the human kind—build a giant waterfall so Brutus can stand in it and learn to catch salmon as if they are jumping upstream. It doesn't go very well; the fish mostly bounce off Brutus' head.

"The only way I think I could ever get him to really, really try to go after one of those fish is if I was to put him in a survival situation where he basically had to catch fish or he wouldn't get anything," Anderson said. "That's when it gets dangerous, when you start forcing and pushing and disrespecting him, so there's that fine line."

"Project Kodiak" shows that mutual respect, but it also gives the impression that Brutus spends more time with Anderson than he does with other bears. That's not true, Anderson says, Brutus does have bear buddies.

"About 90 percent of Brutus' life he's just being a bear with the other bears and digging and knocking trees down and swimming in the pond," Anderson said. "So he lives very much a bear life."

dream. It gave him a chance to show how bears and humans can peacefully coexist, a subject he's passionate about. As he says in the episode: On Kodiak, humans and bears share the island's chief food source—salmon.

"There's a triangle between bears, people and salmon," he said. "People respect the bears and bears respect them too. To have that many people and bears interacting, most people would think there'd be a lot more conflict."

Among other fascinating moments, Anderson gives viewers an up-close look at the techniques wild bears use to catch fish. Yes, they do have several techniques, most of which Anderson could not duplicate. In one of the more stomach-churning moments, Anderson bites into a salmon that one bear has stripped of its skin and discarded.

"I don't know if you eat sushi, but that was some of the best salmon I've ever had," Anderson said, laughing. "I was sitting there watching that bear chase, kill and then strip it right in front of me. It was pretty cool. Plus, like I said, it was very delicious."

Anderson's enthusiasm and passion for bears comes through in nearly every scene of

BIRTHDAY!
Aries

March 21-April 19
Your emotions are all over the place. One minute you feel like a million dollars. The next minute you feel like a loser. Mars is creating psychic earthquakes, so hang tight. This isn't the best time to get engaged or move in with someone.

Taurus April 20-May 20

It's important for you to connect with someone mind, body and soul. Physical attraction isn't enough to make a relationship work. The moon is encouraging you to dig deeper with your honey. Talk about life, the universe and everything.

Gemini May 21-June 21

You claimed you were in love with your girl, but now you're realizing there are a lot of other fish in the sea. Or you thought you'd spend forever with your guy, but now you're lusting after a former flame.

Cancer June 22-July 22

Sometimes you take things too personally. Just because your significant other is going through a quarter-life or midlife crisis doesn't mean things can't work out. Give your honey time to figure out what he or she wants.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

You could experience a clash of sexual styles, thanks to Mercury. You want to be tied up and dominated, and your boyfriend is acting shy. Or you crave a wild woman who takes charge in bed, and your girlfriend is passive. Talk it out.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Saturn enters your sign this week, staying there through the summer. You're obsessed with fixing everything that's gone wrong in your life, including your romantic situation. Love relationships require finesse, not a sharp, pointy stick.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

Your romantic partner could offer you a few surprises, thanks to Uranus. You'll find some fishnet stockings in your boyfriend's underwear drawer and realize he once was a woman. Or your girlfriend will reveal that she's a vampire.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

Don't ignore your honey if he or she wants to vent. Mercury is reminding you that you need to get out of your own head and start listening to your partner's problems. Offer some suggestions, but most importantly, be kind.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You might need to deal with annoying financial stuff or overtime at work, courtesy of annoying Pluto. Meanwhile, a relationship situation is getting weird. Don't make any sudden moves. Take care of your own challenges before dealing with romantic complications.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Three planets are turning you into a sexual maestro. If you're at a party, you'll collect more phone numbers than you can keep track of. If you're in a relationship, your partner will want to spend every waking minute with you. How cool is that?

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

If your lover isn't pulling his or her weight, it's annoying. Right now you're bothered by things your honey has been neglecting. If your boyfriend hates to do dishes or your girlfriend is a slob, have a discussion about it. Saturn says don't be passive-aggressive.

Pisces

Feb. 19-March 20

You'll want to surround yourself with groups instead of spending lots of one-on-one time with someone. Maybe a relationship is going too fast and you need to take a break. Pluto is showing you that you require a balance between intimate relationships and casual friendships.

'Glee' cast hits dance floor

What did the cast of Fox's hit musical series "Glee" do while in Chicago on Saturday to tape an episode of "Oprah"?

Exactly what you would think they'd do: Dance.

Mark Salling (Puck), Amber Morris (Mercedes), Heather Morris (Brittany), Harry Shum Jr. (Mike) and Naya Rivera (Santana) partied at Jbar for about three hours Saturday and spent much of the night dancing. The teen-playing actors, who are of legal drinking age—or in Salling and Shum's case, very of age—drank Belvedere vodka and ate cheesecake lolipops from David Burke's Primehouse.

They left the River North bar around 2 a.m. "So ready for takeoff," Riley tweeted Sunday morning. "I'm so sleepy."

On Monday, the cast members will perform for another famous Chicagoan when they appear at the annual White House Easter Egg Roll. About 30,000 people are expected to attend the event on the South Lawn.

"Thank you Chicago!" Shum tweeted. "Such a beautiful city and I'm glad that we got time to explore a little. Thank you Oprah 4 having us!! Obama we coming!"

The "Glee" episode of "Oprah" airs Wednesday. The cast will be back for two sold-out shows May 25 and 26 at the Rosemont Theatre.

A fine for nude Badu

Erykah Badu stripped down in Dallas' Dealey Plaza and now the Dallas Police Department has slapped her with a disorderly conduct violation, which comes with a $500 fine. The site of the JFK assassination was the backdrop for the clothing-optional "Window Seat" video. The Dallas Morning News reported a witness came forward and told police that she and her children saw Badu cavorting in the plaza.

Blago fired—again

Ousted Gov. Rod Blagojevich is befuddled by modern technology and doesn't know much about Harry Potter. Those weaknesses contributed to his downfall Sunday on "Celebrity Apprentice." As project manager for a Harry Potter theme park exhibit, he delegated a lot of the work to rocker Bret Michaels and snoozed on the plane ride back to New York. "We lost—or you could say they won," Blago told Donald Trump, playing the consummate politician to the end. Goodbye.

Still dancing

"Dancing with the Stars" contestant Erin Andrews isn't letting death threats ruin her fun. "I'm glad I'm here," the ESPN correspondent tells people.com. "I'm not going to stop living my life." Andrews has been the target of threats and is now under police protection, her lawyer says. In other "DWTS" news, Evan Lysacek is ready to play hurt. The figure skater tweeted last week that he broke two toes while dancing, but is still good to go this week, online.com reports.

Going after Brangelina's record

Jessica Alba is eager to expand her brood. She was inspired by an appearance on "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition," on which she helped rebuild a home for a foster family of 15, according to people.com. "If you have the love, and the capacity to love children, you should just adopt. And I plan on doing it," Alba said.

Weezy stays positive

Lil Wayne won't be silenced while behind bars. A Web site called weezythanxyou.com has given the caged bird a place to sing. He posted a letter to his fans, letting them know: "I'm in good spirits man, for real."

Lots of sex, but not sexy

Just when you thought things couldn't get any worse for Tiger Woods, the world's best golfer/most famous sex addict has been dubbed the unsexiest man alive by the alternative weekly The Boston Phoenix. The Phoenix, which creates an annual list of "the most grotesque men from around the globe," says Woods "took that whole 'Just Do It' slogan a smidge too literally" to earn the top spot. Joining Woods in the Top 5 (or should we say Bottom 5) are:

- 2 Mike "The Situation" Sorrentino
- 3 John Edwards
- 4 Kevin Smith
- 5 John Mayer
